

Workshop

Vegetable grafting for sustainable horticulture

10 November 2015 - Aula Blu, University of Tuscia, Viterbo

9:30: Opening

Giuseppe Colla, Coordinator of Cost Action FA1204; Stanley Freeman MERC project Coordinator

9:40: Traditional tomato varieties: challenges for conservation and valorization

Andrea Mazzucato, University of Tuscia, Italy

10:00: Rootstock-scion compatibility in melons: the effect of growing season and environmental conditions

Nabil Omari, Ministry of Agriculture, Israel

10:20: *Control management of melon root rot and vine decline caused by *Monosporascus cannonballus

Gabriele Chilosi, University of Tuscia, Italy

10:40: *Response of grafted melons to salinity and *Fusarium wilt

Adel Al Abed, NCARE, Jordan

11:00: Coffee Break

11:30: Current status of vegetable grafting in Egypt

Sahar Youssef, ARC, GIZA, Egypt

11:50: Grafting for improving abiotic stress tolerance

Giuseppe Colla, University of Tuscia, Italy

12:10: Use of grafted plants to reduce accumulation of arsenic in melon

Silvia Stazi, University of Tuscia, Italy

12: 30: Discussions and conclusions

Under the patronage of Information

Venue: Aula Blu, University of Tuscia, via S.C. De Lellis snc, Viterbo, Italy.

Accommodation: Best Western Hotel Viterbo, Via San Camillo De Lellis, 6 - 01100 – Viterbo (www.hotelviterbo.eu). Phone: +39-0761-270100 - Fax: +39-0761-275717 E-mail: viterbo.vt@bestwestern.it

Local Organizer: Giuseppe Colla and Antonio Fiorillo, Dept. DAFNE, University of Tuscia, via S.C. De Lellis snc, Viterbo, Italy. Phone: +39-(0)761-357536. Email: giucolla@unitus.it

Participation is free of charge.

Please confirm your participation by sending an email to the Local Organizer (giucolla@unitus.it)